“Trevor Loudon does the job that few in the media ever attempt” – Glenn Beck

From Christchurch New Zealand, Trevor Loudon has been researching the radical left for more than 30 years.

Loudon has interviewed many people from both sides of the struggle over the years to former Western intelligence offices, to government undercover operatives inside the communist movement, to former KGB officers.

This research has given Loudon unique insight into how extensively often miniscule communist parties have been able to manipulate, and even control policy formation in many Western countries – particularly the “main enemy” the United States of America. Loudon’s research shows that this is not just a historical problem, but is a very real issue, threatening America’s national security, and indeed very survival, right up to the present day.

In March 2007, Loudon discovered the long hidden relationship between notorious Hawaiian Communist Party member Frank Marshall Davis and the young Barack Obama. After a year’s research into Obama’s ties to the New York and Chicago Marxist movements, Loudon began publishing his research online in January 2008.

Soon his work was being quoted by Accuracy in Media, countless bloggers and Glenn Beck.

In 2009 Loudon exposed the communist roots of Obama “Green Jobs Czar” Van Jones. After an extensive campaign by Glenn Beck and others, Jones was forced to resign from his White House position.

Since 2011 Loudon has toured the United States promoting his two books “Barack Obama and the Enemies Within” and “The Enemies Within: Communists, Socialists and Progressives in the U.S. Congress” – an extensively footnoted expose of the rapidly unfolding Marxist takeover of the United States government.

Loudon has addressed more than 300 conservative, tea party, religious and Republican groups in more than 30 states.

He believes that if America should fall, so will every Western nation, including his beloved New Zealand.
